What is Video Modeling?

Video modeling is the use of video to instruct an individual on desired skills or behaviors by viewing someone demonstrating those skills or behaviors (Prelock, 2006; Prelock, Paul, & Allen, 2011).

Common Areas Targeted at Gerner

- Playground
- Hallways
- Restroom
- Multi Purpose Room
- Bus

Tips to Increase Student Understanding

- Students are same age.
- Record in child's voice.
- Use language appropriate for developmental age.
- Use your own building for videos and pictures.
- Generalizing skills to be taught are easier for our more “concrete learners.”
- Keep your videos short.

Features of Video Modeling

- Keep images focused on target behavior, omitting extraneous or background images.
- Use personal pronoun statements.
- Use a screen shot to state and title an expectation. Follow up with a video of the expectation including the live sounds of the environment it takes place in.
- Can be as simple as taking a video as a child walking down the hall. You can do it in the moment.

Example: Using the iPad and iMovie app

Video student(s) completing the expectation.

Can edit within photos on the iPad

Open iMovie & select new project.

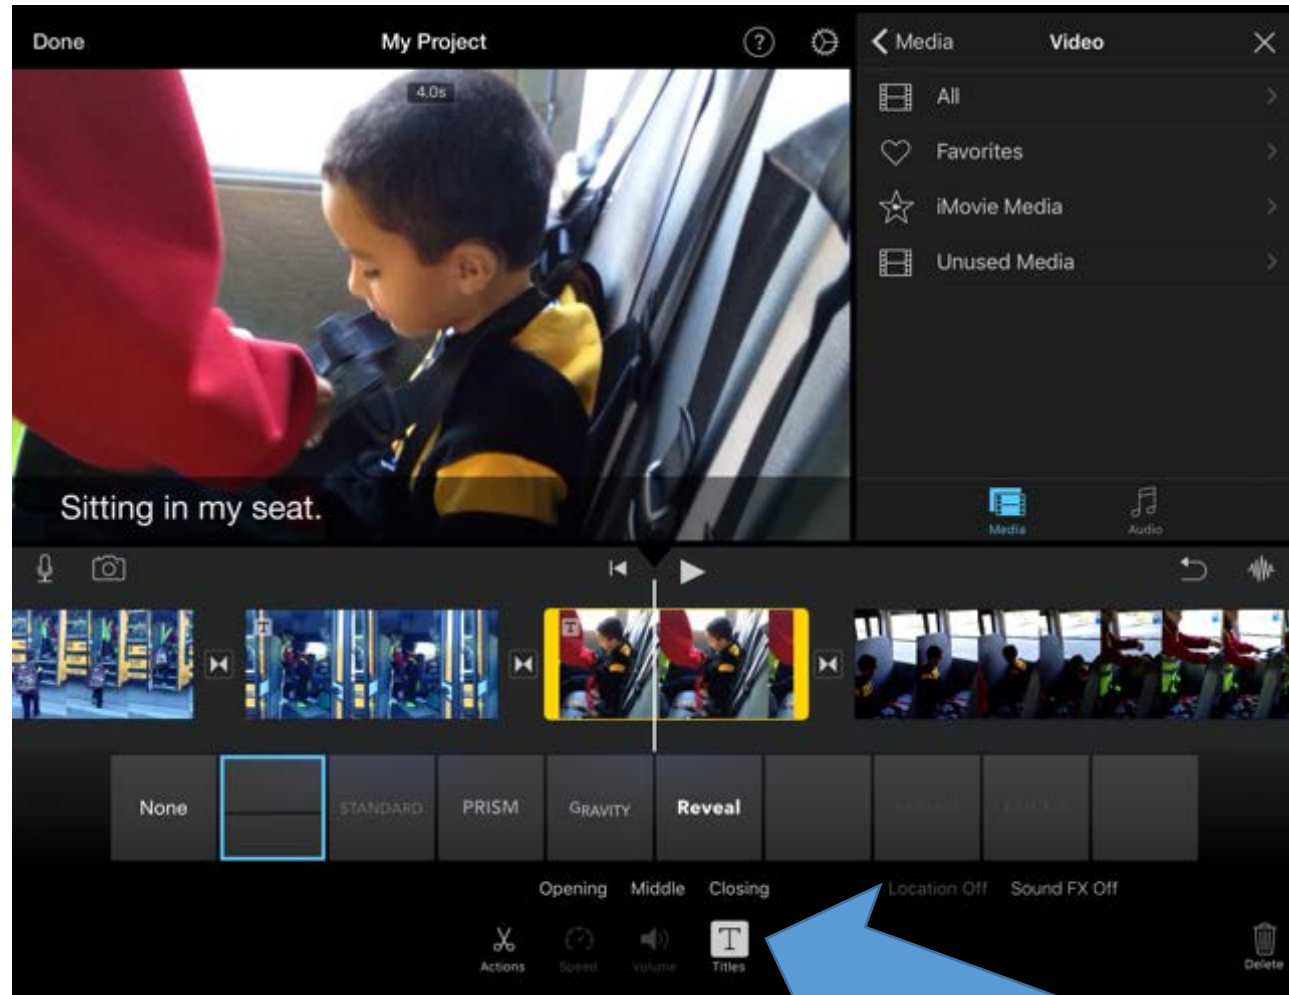

Choose video or pictures to insert

Can edit within the iMovie app when browsing for footage.

Title your video or picture.

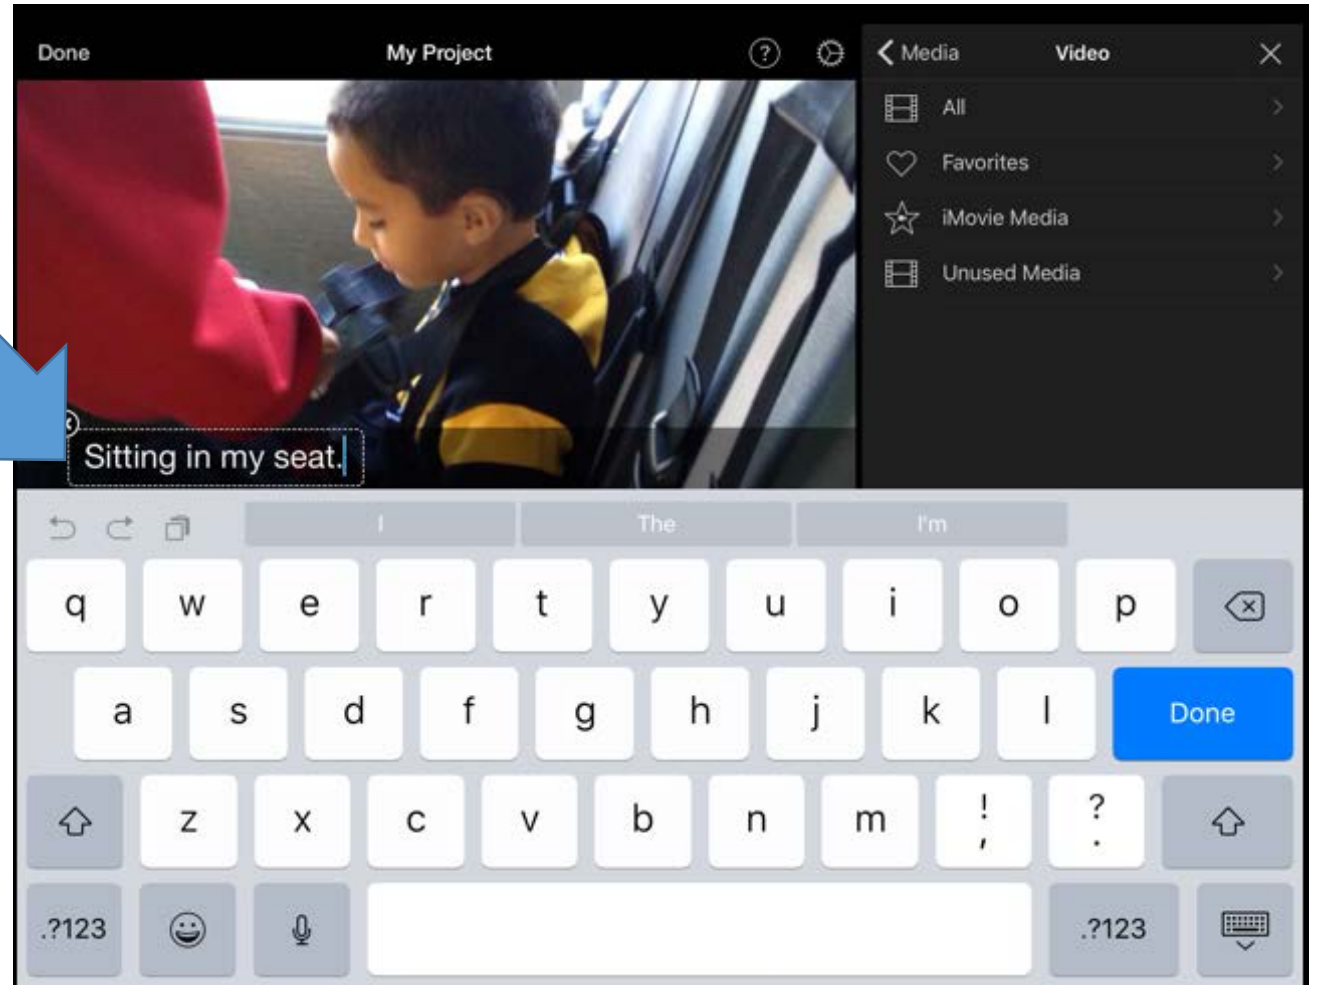

Type in the text box. Use personal pronouns

“Sitting in my seat”

“I will sit in the seat”

“The bus aide buckles me in.”

Audio features of iMovie

Record expectations. Have them match the sentences typed in as the “Title” for each screen you create.
